The Challenge

Discovering your Real Impact

Why is it important to know the real impact that you have on the contributions of others and your team culture? It is essential to foster teams that bring their best thinking, creativity, and engagement, especially in re-imagining business and digital transformation. Yet, out of fear, protection, or feeling less valued or valuable, people may hold back their ideas and opinions. When critical insight is openly shared, leaders and their teams make informed decisions based on solid feedback and information.

Our Approach

Fostering Essential Conversations that Disrupt Complacency

We enable a conscious mindset shift from being reactive, to being receptive, responsive & change-capable. We partner with you in a needs assessment to identify specific gaps impeding progress to determine the scope of work and journey map desired outcomes and value-creation. We ask strategic questions, shed light on unexamined blind spots, and integrate a leader and team development plan.

Program

Leadership Development & Communication Excellence

Coaching for Change conversations inspire a conscious mindset shift from being reactive, to being receptive, responsive & change-capable. We facilitate on-going collaborative dialogues that cut through clutter to get deeper into change capability and communication excellence. Our goal is to enable leaders and teams to clear and focused outcomes & value-creation. Impact is felt in improved well-being, alignment, engagement and personal and professional potential.

Learning Impact

Human-Centric Team Culture

Making the right impact on your team is top-of-mind. The issue? The higher up you are, the more dependent you are on others for information. You're at greater risk that you won't get the information, or if you do, it's somehow biased or incomplete. Your decision-making is at risk because you're not getting the data, the information you need to make informed decisions.

Our leadership & team development solutions:

- Bridge the gap between impact and perception
- Gain greater – and legitimate – organizational influence
- Empower inspired human-centred cultures
